

Away

Leah McBride

We live in a world of explored wilderness, found paradise, and rocks turned. All unbearable terrain has been borne, every ocean and sea sailed. Valleys, forests, deserts, islands and everything in between has been charted, plotted, divided and mapped. There is nowhere else to turn to, no place far enough from the charters, plotters, dividers and mappers.

We are suddenly conquered.