

Adopt Publication

From: Winter 1939 issue of
The Veterinary Student.

The VETERINARY STUDENT became the official publication of the Iowa State Student chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association at the meeting of that organization January 25.

Following the adopting of the publication plans were outlined where by a Publication Board will be set up as an advisory and control board. Definite plans concerning the proposed board had not been presented to the organization at the time this publication went to press but the Board will be definitely organized by the end of the winter quarter.

From: Dean Phillip T. Pearson
College of Veterinary Medicine

Congratulations to the Iowa State University Veterinarian for fifty years of outstanding service to the College of Veterinary Medicine and the veterinary profession. A special thanks to the many dedicated colleagues who have been a part of the Journal in such roles as editorial staff, business staff, publication board, faculty advisor, authors, and readers. Each of you have played a key role in the Journal.

The ISU Veterinarian is observing its special 50th year during a very busy and challenging period of time. President Eaton has introduced a number of new and exciting directions for the University. A major change in the College of Veterinary Medicine involves reducing the number of professional students in the entering classes from 120 to 76 students with a retention of present resources. This change will result in a stronger educational program and a better balance between the teaching, research and medical service missions of the College, the number of faculty, staff and other resources available, and the need for graduate veterinarians.

Again, our most sincere congratulations and best wishes to all of you who have been or are associated with our ISU Veterinarian.

TO: Students and Staff of
the ISU Veterinarian

Congratulations from the 1,800 members of the Iowa State University Alumni Association to the Iowa State University Veterinarian for 50 years of publication. This is a unique publication as it is totally managed, published, edited, and produced by veterinary students. Many alumni spent a great deal of time on the publication while students at Iowa State and look forward to receiving each issue. The ISU Veterinarian is an important contact for many with the College of Veterinary Medicine and with the University. The news of past classes, list of incoming students, and placement of new graduates is particularly popular. The scientific articles are interesting and informative.

In many respects, the ISU Veterinarian is the official publication of the Iowa State University Veterinary Medical Alumni Association, which underwrites most of the cost of publication. All association members receive a subscription to the ISU Veterinarian.

Congratulations and best wishes to the staff of the ISU Veterinarian, past, present, and future.

Sincerely,
Nolan R. Hartwig, DVM
