OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

January 2, 1979

Congratulatory Note on the Occasion of the Centennial Celebration of the Iowa State University
College of Veterinary Medicine

In the life of a university or any of its colleges, one day stands above all others in special significance and historical importance. That day, of course, is the centennial of its founding. In marking its importance, we need to be mindful not so much of the passage of one hundred years as of the attainment of the first milestone--a milestone reached only through the vision, dedication, teaching, research, and service of a great many people.

Because of the central importance of the College of Veterinary Medicine to Iowa State University, to the citizens of our state and nation, and to people throughout the world, this centennial milestone is most deserving of happy and grateful commemoration.

Sincerely yours,

W. Robert Parks
President
