

The Sun in Her Eyes

by Brittany Mease

Rays of sun hit her eyes and
Reflected the light in the purest sense:
Astonished by such beauty he said,

“I love you.”

Except, she knew that once the sun faded
Into the night,
So would his love.

Brittany Mease is a senior in English Education who enjoys reading and writing in her spare time. She finds her inspiration by reading/watching performances by poets such as Sabrina Benaim, Neil Hilborn, Shane Koyczan, and Lang Leav. Brittany would like to thank her friends, family, and fellow future teachers who have shown support in her creative and career goals.