

Today I threw my television out the window

Jessica Nanke

without protest
from my second story.
Exploding upon the pavement an eruption of plastic and glass radiating from a concrete impact point
the blast
jolted the neighbors
rippled through the lake of normal the freeing of my
dusty library
awakening
a conversation.
The best thing
I've done
to save our relationship.