

GRADUATING CLASS

1964

The College of Veterinary Medicine will confer the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine upon sixty-two graduating seniors on May 29, 1964. Other degrees earned by members of this class include twelve Bachelor of Science degrees, one Bachelor of Arts degree, two Master of Science degrees, and one Doctor of Philosophy degree.

Of the sixty-two seniors forty-one are married and have a total of fifty-one children.

The average age is twenty-five and ranges from twenty-two to thirty-five.

There are nineteen veterans in the class.

Twenty-two members of the graduating class will enter a mixed practice following graduation. Eight have made plans for their professional future in large animal practice and five of the seniors will be engaged in a small animal practice. There are fourteen graduating seniors that will be entering the military service. Some will practice until going into the service and others will enter immediately after graduation. Two men plan to enter graduate school.
