What's Your Radiographic Diagnosis?

History: A one-and-one-half year old male canine was brought to Stange Memorial Clinic with a swelling in the right elbow. Owners reported that there had been some lameness in the right front leg for two months duration. These radiographs were taken. What is your radiographic diagnosis?

Oblique (left) and lateral (right) views of right front leg of dog with progressive lameness.

Answer: Histopathology of biopsy revealed Coccidioidal mycosis.
